

MATT COOPER MOVING TO GLANMIRE

Rumours have abounded for days and now we can finally reveal that none other than Matt Cooper is moving to Glanmire early next year. Thanks to an anonymous insider at the Gerry Fitzserald offices, we know that Mr. Cooper (real name Matthew Cooper), a cork native has viewed 3 properties in Glanmire and 1 in Glounthaune over the past month.

He has yesterday, along with his wife, finalised the deal that will make them Glanmire residents by purchasing a home in the Castlejane area. It's believed that Glanmire's positive atmosphere and general vibe is what swung the Coopers' decision to move to the area.

Our maternity cover receptionist informant in the auctioneers office also revealed that the house in question had some damp and black mould in the downstairs bathroom, but that this was something that Matt Cooper was willing to overlook as long as it was "dealt with" by the move-in date.

Non-Glanmire resident Matt Cooper

We would like to clarify at this point that it is not Radio personality Matt Cooper, but rather his namesake, a fund accountant from Bishopstown that we are reporting about. We would like to take this opportunity to welcome the Coopers to the area and hope that they find happiness and success in our beautiful corner of the world.

Keeping Secrets in Glanmire Since 19??

MATT DAMON GIVEN LIFETIME BAN FROM SPACEX

Hollywood heart-owner Matt Damon (50) has been issued with a “Permanent Lifetime Ban” from any and all SpaceX flights by the company’s founder and man who might just have an actual lair in a volcano, Elon Musk (49). Such is the strength of Mr. Musk’s conviction that Mr. Damon be banned, he has also banned Matt (Damon) from entering SpaceX property (except the gift shop, when supervised) for fear of the actor stowing away on one of his space rockets.

“It’s just not worth the financial risk of having to send a rescue mission to save him from somewhere” said the world’s richest man.

GNA has reached out to the internet for any leads on contact details for Matt Damon’s publicist for comment.

Struck Off! with Dr. Niamh Nic Gearailt

(WEIL'S DISEASE)

Weil's disease is a severe form of leptospirosis. This is a type of bacterial infection. It's caused by Leptospira bacteria (well duh!).

You can contract it if you come into contact with the urine, blood, or tissue of animals or rodents that are infected with the bacteria. These may include: Cattle, Pigs, Dogs or Rats.

Now if this is the case, your biggest problem isn't the disease itself, but rather the explanation of why you were messing around in some god-awful rubbish dump of a place that you actually came into contact with rats! Cause believe me, it will be rat piss/plops that cause it. Despite the contents of the third sentence of this article, nobody gets it from cows, pigs or dogs.

So, you've forgotten to wipe your beer bottle top before taking a swig, and the poor storage standards of your dingy watering hole have come to haunt you, what exactly can you expect?

Leptospirosis, (Weil's disease remember) typically causes mild flu-like symptoms, such as headaches and creepy chills. If the bacteria infects some specific organs, there may be a more severe reaction (ooooo jaysus!). These organs include: liver, kidneys, lungs, heart and brain.

This reaction is known as Weil's disease. In rare cases, it can lead to organ failure and death. There will be two deaths in this case, the actual one caused by the disease, and the second, more harrowing one, the mortification and death of your reputation as you have now died of Weil's disease.

If you're diagnosed with leptospirosis, your doctor or local online newsletter medical expert, will prescribe/advise you of a course of antibiotics to treat it. But if you develop Weil's disease, you may need to be admitted to a hospital for extra care.

In short, have a bit of common sense and wash your hands every now and then. Anti-bac gel is good too, but it can dry your hands out, sometimes causing ant-bac-gel-rash, or angel's kiss. Or wear gloves.

With the phenomenon of "lockdown babies" now coming to fruition, we at the Glanmire News Area have compiled some of the best need-to-know and a few "huh, really"? baby and birth facts for you to digest.

21 NEED TO KNOW BABY & BIRTH FACTS

- 1 Baby eyes do not grow. They are as large as they will be throughout life. However, the amount of things that the eyes can see increase exponentially with every passing second. Unless of course the baby is blind and remains blind until death.
- 2 Contrary to popular belief, storks have a 0% success rate in birthing human children. They are far more likely to breed more storks.
- 3 The Irish word for baby is not bábóg, although it really should be. The actual word for baby is leanbh, which sounds more like a brand of hand soap.
- 4 The word pregnancy is a portmanteau of the words "Preg" meaning pregnant and "Nancy" referring to Nancy Reagan, the world's first ever pregnant woman.
- 5 Ex-Leeds United manager David O'Leary often referred to his young squad as "his babies", this however, is technically not true. Many of them were professional footballers such as Michael Duberry and Stephen McPhail.
- 6 In the final month of pregnancy (around week 39/40), the unborn child must complete a series of aptitude tests to qualify for birth. Poor test results can mean the child must resit the exam in 3 months time whilst also incurring a charge of €30 in administration fees.
- 7 Katie Price is prohibited from breastfeeding due to the large micro plastic particle content of her breast milk.
- 8 Keen fans of the 1994 film "Junior" in which Danny de Vito impregnates Arnold Schwarzenegger, a man, through a series of rough sex acts, will know that this is not actually biologically possible. This gaping plot hole is ignored throughout the movie, but with a 36% score on Rotten Tomatoes, the film gets away with it to produce a modern classic.
- 9 Much like baby teeth, children also lose their baby fingernails and toenails throughout childhood. It is a gruesome sight.
- 10 Voice of Dustin the Turkey, John Morrison, was once accused of deliberately trodding on the foot of his neighbour's 2 year old toddler. Morrison claimed the allegation was "categorically untrue" and "absolute rubbish"

- 11 Similar to the western myth of the tooth fairy, Russia's "Vor pupovny" or "cord pirate/umbilical thief", is an ethereal pixie that visits newborns that recently have had the dried stump of the umbilical cord fall off. This is placed under the doormat of the home and is replaced with trolley tokens which can be used at any (participating) Russian supermarket's trolleys.
- 12 Known as "nappies" in the UK and "diapers" in the US, to the people of Australia, they are called "shitting trunks".
- 13 Baby tears are incredibly viscous. Such is their viscosity, it is rumoured that baby tears is one of the key ingredients in WD-40. The fact that WD-40 has never patented its recipe (as it would then have to disclose its contents) has only encouraged such allegations.
- 14 According to the catholic church, unbaptised children who perish would go to Limbo for eternity. This viewpoint was later removed in the catholic church's great system update of 1979.
- 15 In Tucson, Arizona, a pregnant woman filed a law-suit against her unborn child for theft of previously eaten food, nutrients and blood. The case was immediately thrown out at the preliminary hearing stage.
- 16 Babies are born with three innate fears; falling, loud noises and the rise of fascism and the far right.
- 17 Katie Price live streamed the birth of her 5th child. She also invited the Mayor of Chelmsford to unveil the child by ceremoniously cutting the umbilical cord. The Mayor declined as he was already scheduled to reopen a water slide at "Westerton's Water Park".
"I would rather see a string of kids splash out of this wide soggy shute. At least this one is fun to use and can still draw a crowd" - Mayor of Chelmsford.
- 18 Newborn babies cry and even laugh in different accents, which they acquire mostly from listening to the mother during pregnancy. Newborn babies also fart in different keys. Baby Freddie Mercury is rumoured to have been able to fart the complete scale plus another octave or two above.
- 19 Babies born on international flights are eligible for nationality of either the country of departure, the country of arrival, or the country in which the airline is based. They also receive a complementary set of ear-phones and a small pillow.
- 20 A Tesco Express in Bradford once sold a pack of chorizo that contained an umbilical cord inside the packaging. A spokesperson for the Tesco branch later explained that it was a tasteless April fools prank and also apologised for the timing of the gag as the purchase was made on March 26th.
- 21 French water brand Evian's roller-skating babies commercial was not in fact computer generated. It was the work of 16 weeks of intense training. In total, 210 babies were used in the production.

MISSING CAT POSTER NOW MISSING!

A missing cat poster has now been reported missing along with the still outstanding missing cat. GNA sources confirm that the missing poster was taken (or perhaps blown away by wind) sometime last week. A passer-by commented on the situation (after minutes of explanation from this reporter) "it's insulting an injury". The passer-by, oblivious to his muddling up of a common phrase, then wandered in the general direction of Riverstown Cross, along with a quite well worn bag for life clasped in his left hand.

Should you have any information regarding the whereabouts of the missing cat poster, please contact the Glanmire News Area hotline immediately at the usual number. We are not currently seeking any information regarding the actual cat.

GRAND THEFT DIGGER

A €5,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the return of a €60,000 digger and a trailer.

The Hitachi 130 Zaxis digger, complete with a 6ft bucket and exceptionally large bog tracks, was stolen from O’Riordan’s astro-turf bog in Knockraha over the last long weekend.

The thieves, who are thought to have struck between 9am and 4pm on Monday, or between 11am and 6pm on Tuesday, also stole a twin axle “Tyrannosaur” machinery trailer.

The theft is thought to be opportunistic rather than a professional job.

last sighting of digger

Distinctive with its wide bog tracks, the digger is bright orange in colour with a grey cab and spotlights. The tractor-drawn trailer is red and has foldable loading ramps. The orange digger/red trailer combo is in itself the overriding stand-out feature to be on the lookout for. Aside from the bright colour, the Hitachi 130 comes fully equipped with auto/hydraulic quick coupler, hammer circuit, adjustable cup-holder, safety line rupture valve and of course air conditioning.

O’Riordan International, who own the machinery, are offering a €5,000 reward for information leading to the recovery of all of the equipment or €250 for just a clue.

How're Things Mary?

MARY'S LETTER OF LOVE

Well, my loves, it's that time of year again where love reigns chicken supreme. Cupid, like a naked, even younger Peter Pan, cursed never to grow up, but with wings and a bow and arrow to defend himself so it's not all bad, is once again flying around Glanmire in his love helicopter, picking off single people with a solitary arrow and the aim of Tom Cruise in a Tom Cruise film, having them meet each other in circumstances that would be considered nauseating to anyone but them, and forcing them to fall in love.

However, during these Covid times, Cupid has had to restrict his movements and his usual activities for fear of being brought to court accused of being culpable in the deaths of potentially thousands of people due to the spread of Covid-19 through the contact he insisted be made by people who were not already in a bubble with each other.

So, this Valentine's Day, let's forget about the single losers and instead, focus on those in Glanmire who actually are loveable and, indeed, loved and also madly in love with very attractive partners who think they're very funny and intelligent and know how to treat them respectfully, but also know how to make them beg for more pain and pleasure when fucking.

And so, my hot tips for sexing up YOUR Valentine's Day this pandemic are;

Dogging - As long as everyone wears masks and faces in the same direction then I'm sure it's fine. But keep to within your 5km.

Anal - Statistics would suggest that at least one of you has never had anything up your ass. Give it a go. You might like it.

A Nice Bath - Have you ever had a nice, relaxing, soothing and sensual bubble bath together? Light some candles, put on some music, climb into the warm water together and just enjoy the feel of each other's bodies.

Bondage - If you've never been tied up before, boy are you in for a treat. Rope, chains, leather straps, belts, whatever you can get your hands on. Tie each other up and let the teasing and forced pleasure commence.

Incorporate Food - Chocolate and whipped cream are classics, but be inventive. If you've struggled to bring up your spit-roast fantasy, now's your chance. Nothing says sexy like starting a sentence with "Speaking of..."

Speaking of sex though, consent is still the number one priority at all times. No means no. It doesn't matter how long you've been with someone, you must give and receive consent and where you are looking for consent from a partner, you must also give them the choice and opportunity to say "No". There should be no pressure to say "Yes" when "No" is the answer you or they want to give.

Happy fucking.

Kisses,
Mary xxxx

NOTE FOR THE EDITOR: This better go out before Valentine's Day or I'm going to look like a right cunt.

BOOK OF THE MONTH

Don't be fooled by the title, Rosemary Scallon's autobiography "All Kinds of Everything" is not a comprehensive classification of all known things in the observable universe. It focuses more on the life and ideology of one Rosemary Scallon a.k.a Dana. This is a class book all the way, with a fancy gold thread bookmark stitched to the central spine, and not to mention the beautiful matte finish dust jacket that surrounds this 76 page tome. The story itself is so-so. The typical tale of a twice unsuccessful Irish presidential candidate.
